CINCO DE MAYO

Although some may see Cinco De Mayo as Mexican Independence Day. It actually has a different meaning than we thought crazy right? Well it all started with the battle of Puebla in 1862 against the French. The French army had 2,000 more troops and still was defeated by the Mexican troops. The war itself was lost against the French but they still celebrate because the initial Mexican victory was still impressive. So keep that in mind while munching down on chips and salsa.

SPRING FLING PARTY IS HERE:)

On Friday the 13th we will be having our spring party. At this party there will be dancing as usual but also a fun twist this time. We will be having games like cornhole, a cupcake walk and a fishing game. Toward the end of the party we will have cupcakes or cookies to pass out for everyone. This spring fling is going to be a blast!
